About Pretty Flours

Block Printed Designs by Molly Thompson

All of my textiles are created one at a time. Each is a unique work of art.

Pretty Flours handprinted textiles are all made using stamps that I carve by hand. My stamps create impressions that emulate gardens, both real and imagined. Using hand-mixed paint colors applied to the stamps with a brush, I create variations in color, texture, saturation, and tone.

My flour sack cotton textiles are organic turkish cotton, sewn for me in Izmir, Turkey by a small family-owned company. I use eco-friendly, food-safe fabric paints and each towel, apron, runner, and napkin is heat set to withstand rigorous use and repeated laundering. Everything is labeled with a tag attached by a handsewn button.

Quality is important to me. The fabrics I use have been chosen for their exceptional appearance and durability for years of use and repeated washing. I am committed to sourcing the highest quality fabrics, papers, packaging, and other materials that have been manufactured in a manner that respects the health of our planet.

My paper goods are created from my original, hand printed art work. Prints are professionally reproduced and printed on high-quality papers at a printing facility powered by renewable energy, right here in Maine. Cards and wrapping paper come packaged, ready for sale. All of my work is signed with my hand carved signature chop.
